

Learning Styles – what are they?

Everybody learns in different ways. In order to enjoy and get the most out of learning opportunities, you need to find out what sort of a learner you are and HOW you learn. For more information please follow these links:

Background to Learning Styles

http://www.studyskills.soton.ac.uk/studytips/learn_styles.htm

What is a learning style and where do they come from?

http://www.teachingenglish.org.uk/think/methodology/learning_style.shtml

Did you know that you can find out what sort of learner you are on-line?

See the following links:

Discover your learning style

What kind of a learner are you? Find out on-line:

<http://www.campaign-for-learning.org.uk/aboutyourlearning/whatlearning.htm>

View a table to help you decide what type of learner you are...

<http://www.chaminade.org/inspire/learnstl.htm>

A small chart to help you determine your own learning style.

Complete a short survey to discover your own learning style:

<http://www.surrey.ac.uk/Skills/pack/styleq.html>

Index of Learning Styles – an on-line survey to discover your own learning style:

<http://www.crc4mse.org/ILS/Index.html>

What's next?

Once you know what type of learner you are you can make sure you find appropriate teaching styles to suit the way you learn. The links below explain what the teacher/tutor can do for people with different learning styles:

What teaching methods and activities suit different learning styles?

http://www.teachingenglish.org.uk/think/methodology/learning_style.shtml#five

A brief description of learning styles and how you can teach to them:

<http://www.everythingsl.net/inservices/learningstyle.php>

If you are looking for a particular learning/teaching style or learning/training opportunity, please contact ladder4learning as we may be able to help.